

VEEP/NHEEP Summer Institute - August 10-14, 2020

AMBITIOUS INSTRUCTION FOR ENERGY & CLIMATE ACTION

A week-long dive for K-12 teachers into:

- Hands-on investigations
- Best instructional practices
- Student-driven action

Spend a week at beautiful Lake Morey and dive deeply into climate and energy systems through investigations, project-based learning, academically productive discussion, and action. This institute will help you add student-centered projects to your teaching toolkit as you develop your curriculum and instructional practices. Grow strategies that build student agency, grounded in Next Generation Science Standards, Common Core math and literacy, C3 Framework, and 21st-century skills. You'll leave with everything you need to guide students to make a difference in their school and community.

The institute and one follow-up meeting will support you to create a personalized teaching unit on energy and/or climate, using ambitious instructional practice. Individual ongoing support and use of VEEP/NHEEP materials kits will be available to help make your unit successful during the 2020/21 school year.

Tuition includes all instruction and materials, plus all meals and a spacious shared room at Lake Morey Resort. Three graduate credits are available. Scholarship funds are available if cost is a barrier; please be in touch if you would like more info on scholarships:

About VEEP

The Vermont Energy Education Program has provided teacher professional development through Summer Institutes and one-day workshops for more than two decades.

VEEP/NHEEP instructors bring a deep experience with the Next Generation Science Standards, and an understanding of the multiple competing demands on teachers' time to these trainings.
